Synergy of front and back surfaces

Dual-Side

7MFH

Camber™

Digital Ray-Path 2®

Steady™

camber is an innovative lens technology that combines complex surface curves on both sides of the lens to provide excellent vision correction. The unique variable base curve on the front surface of the specially designed lens blank allows expanded reading zones and improved peripheral vision. When combined with a back surface design, both surfaces work together to accommodate an expanded Rx range, offer better cosmetics for many prescriptions, and yield wearer-preferred near vision and performance.

Digital Ray-Path 2®

Compensated Power

Steady™

DIGITAL RAY-PATH 2® is a patent-pending technology that mathematically compensates for oblique aberrations and adds the intelligent use of the wearer's accommodation; the small adjustments the eyes naturally make to view objects at different distances. This is the most advanced digital lens processing technology available utilizing an innovative 3D calculation model considering the actual position of the lens in relation to the natural movements of the human eye. The result is a drastic reduction of oblique aberrations throughout the visual field. Wearers will enjoy a personalized lens with excellent visual quality, greater comfort, and more precise focus.

Full Back Side 4MFH Surface Power® Steady™

SURFACE POWER® is an entry-level digital technology. The Rx is placed on the back surface of the lens, with a simple curve, typically a sphere, on the front. The Rx surface is calculated using a pure geometrical method that produces lenses with similar optical performance as conventional lenses, but with the advantages of the digital process, like flexible designs, variable corridor lengths and insets. Surface Power® designs transfer the lens design to the back surface of the lens to allow free-form processing.

Steady methodology for lens designs. This methodology is applied to our main progressive lenses. It considers the average power of the sphere of distribution to increase the wearer's visual satisfaction. In standard toric lenses, the sweet spot of optimal visual clarity is relegated to approximately 11% of the lens directly in line with the wearer's gaze. Digital Ray Path increased that area by more than 30% bringing the sweet spot of optimum visual clarity up to approximately 43% of the lens. New Digital Ray Path 2's revolutionary technology increases the area of visual clarity to approximately 95.5% of the lens, virtually eliminating astigmatic distortion. This allows the wearer to see clearly in any direction of gaze. Working in conjunction with Digital Ray Path 2, and acting as a one two punch, Steady methodology cleans up any remaining peripheral blur, improves vision and assists with image stability.

Technology is built into our main PAL's that is designed to improve performance & visual comfort when reading electronic/mobile devices and computer screens. The intermediate and near visual regions of the surface are optimized for dynamic & agile focus with less effort. More power is delivered to you faster right where you need it in the near zone. The eyes are more relaxed, eyestrain disappears, and the wearer's posture is more ergonomic.
